German Law and German Legal Methods (6 – 17 August 2018)

In summer 2018, the Faculty of Law of Trier University offers its first Summer School in German Law and German Legal Methods.

The classes of the Summer School will offer an introduction into the most important areas of German private and public law. Special emphasis is laid on legal methodology. Students will be trained in the German approach to case analysis and statutory interpretation. They will be taught to solve practical cases and write legal opinions on concrete issues. In addition to the basic programme, students are required to choose an Optional subject*. Optional subjects* include criminal law, corporate law, IP/IT law and tax law.

Students will be taught by experienced members of the Trier law faculty. All teaching is in English.

The Summer School will last for two weeks. Teaching begins on Monday, 6 August and ends on Friday, 17 August 2018. For students interested in pursuing a research project and in using the libraries of Trier University, it is possible to prolong their stay in Trier for up to two weeks.

The Summer School is open to advanced law students and doctoral students enrolled in foreign universities and colleges and recent law graduates with an interest in German law. The classes will be particularly useful for students who play with the idea of pursuing a Master's or Doctoral degree in Germany and who would like to learn more about the German system of legal education. Students are expected to (1) have a basic understanding of their own legal system and (2) be proficient in oral and written English. No knowledge of German is required.

All participants receive a certificate recording their attendance and the number of credits earned. Students will be awarded 6 ECTS credits for their participation (including a short oral presentation on the final day). Students who prolong their stay may choose to write a paper and submit it for additional credit.

A participation fee of 100 € will be charged to all participants. Additionally, participating students will have to pay for their travel as well as for their accommodation and meals during their stay at Trier. The organizers will assist students in finding suitable accommodation on request.

On four days in each week, three classes with a duration of 90 minutes will be taught in the morning and early afternoon. The late afternoons are free for students to review the materials, do their own research, or explore the cultural and architectural treasures of Trier and its beautiful surroundings. On each Wednesday, a guided visit will be offered. Evening lectures on selected topics will give participants an opportunity to get to know further areas of German law not covered by the day classes.

Trier is Germany's oldest city and one of the most beautiful places in the country. Located in the valley of the Moselle river, it was one of the most important cities of the Roman empire. The Roman monuments, of which the Porta Nigra, a fortified city gate, is the most famous, bear testimony to the splendours of Roman Trier. Together with the Cathedral of St. Peter and the Church of Our Lady, the Roman Monuments are inscribed in the UNESCO World Heritage List.

Trier is also the birthplace of Karl Marx (1818 – 1883). In 2018, Karl Marx's 200th birthday is celebrated. A great exhibition in Trier's major museums including the house in which Marx was born will shed light on his life and the impact of his thinking on the modern world.

The University of Trier is old and new at the same time. It was founded in 1473 but closed down in 1798 following the events of the French revolution. The modern university was re-founded in 1970. Today, it counts more than 13 000 students. The Faculty of Law is well known for its strong international orientation. It was among the first German law faculties to offer courses on foreign legal systems in foreign languages to its students. The Trier Law Faculty also offers one of the oldest LL.M.-programs for foreign lawyers in Germany.

The Faculty of Law proudly uses the old Law Faculty's Great Seal, which shows St. Yves Hélor, patron saint of lawyers.

Trier is located in the south west of Germany, close to the borders with Luxembourg and France. It can be reached by car and train. The airport of Luxembourg (LUX) can be reached by car in 30 minutes. The airport of Frankfurt Hahn (HHN) can be reached by bus in about one hour. The airports of Cologne (CGN) and Frankfurt's main airport (FRA) can be reached in two hours by car or in about three hours by train.

Enrolment is open until 15 July 2018. Participation is limited. Upon acceptance, you will receive an invoice for the participation fee of 100 €. After payment, participation will be confirmed.
